You are supportive of Ka Ni Kanichihk's values and beliefs. We are seeking someone who can design and deliver culturally responsive education curricula for youth and adults on a variety of sexual and reproductive health and justice issues. This person has a sound understanding of anti-oppressive frameworks, and deeply understands Indigenous economic, cultural, and political environments.

What You Bring

- You have a deep understanding and experience working with issues around sexuality, reproductive justice, sexual violence and gender-based violence.
- You have experience overseeing the delivery of culturally safe programming for survivors of sexual violence.
- You have
- You know how to create and promote an open and safe space for dialogue about sexual violence.
- You have post-secondary education in a related field and three (3) years' experience working in the Indigenous community, or equivalent combination of education and experience.
- You have demonstrated success with program development and delivery, including successfully managing a budget, and have done program evaluations.
- You have experience supervising a diverse team. You work well with others; you know when to lead, and when to serve.
- You have successfully facilitated group work, and have effective problem-solving, and team-building skills.
- You are very good at prioritizing your work, and can juggle multiply task and have good time management skills.
- You are a great communicator, and can present clear information verbally and written.
- You have knowledge of advocacy services, and community resources and is not afraid to advocate for program participants.
- And you have a good understanding of adult and youth education principles.
- You are comfortable working with Elders, and have experience with arranging ceremonies.
- You are computer literate in the most current and relevant software programs.
